Harlingen Establishes Hardship Assistance Program

HARLINGEN, Texas—The Harlingen City Commission today approved the creation of a Hardship Assistance Program that will help residents that find themselves in a financial bind due to the Coronavirus Pandemic.

The program was unanimously approved during a Special Meeting of the Harlingen City Commission held earlier today and earmarks $225,000 to help Harlingen residents who have overdue utility, rent, or mortgage bills.

Thousands of Texans have lost their jobs or have been temporarily laid off due to COVID-19, including many in Harlingen. Mayor Chris Boswell says through this program, the City aims to help Harlingen residents make ends meet. “I am very pleased that the City of Harlingen is setting aside CARE funding to assist those hit hardest by the COVID-19 pandemic. A lot of community members are hurting.”

The program, to be funded through the CARES Act COVID Relief Funds, will provide financial assistance for utility payments including water/sewer, gas, electric, as well as, rent, and mortgage payments.

Harlingen residents may qualify for up to three months of assistance for over-due accounts from March 1, 2020, through December 30, 2020. The program will also provide up to three months of rental or mortgage assistance not to exceed $1500 per month for eligible Harlingen residents.

The City has entered into a contract with Loaves and Fishes of the Rio Grande Valley who will administer the program at no cost.

There are no income qualifications for this program and the assistance is not limited to only one overdue bill. The bills will be paid directly to the utility provider and landlords/property managers or mortgage companies. Business accounts are not eligible for assistance through this program.
